Museum of Sydney launches new venue space with state of the art facilities Tuesday 18 March, 6 – 8pm

The Historic Houses Trust launches the new AGL Theatre at the Museum of Sydney on Tuesday 18 March from 6 – 8pm, featuring new seating, furnishings and state-of-the-art audiovisual facilities designed to cater to a range of business meetings and events.

Damian Poole, Venues Manager for the Historic Houses Trust says the Museum of Sydney offers the latest facilities to provide a successful function in a stylish and innovative environment.

“The Museum of Sydney can cater for a range of events including seminars, results presentations and conferences as well as stylish cocktail events, dinners and product launches. With the range of spaces available including the striking foyer and glass viewing cube with views overlooking the historic forecourt, each event is a unique experience.

“We are really looking forward to showcasing the venue spaces to potential clients and their guests. Now making available the option of 100% accredited GreenPower™ events across all museum spaces, HHT venues is setting the benchmark within the venues industry. By hosting a green event you minimise carbon impact as well as actively promoting a companies focus on addressing the issue of climate change.

The Museum of Sydney is centrally located in the Sydney CBD and is in close proximity to many corporate offices making it the ideal venue to host your next event.
