

MEDIA RELEASE

Get up close and personal with Tim Ross at Rose Seidler House

He's broadcast to thousands over the airwaves and scooped awards for his on-screen antics, now comedian, author and modernist architecture tragic Tim Ross will perform his first-ever solo show at iconic Rose Seidler House in Wahroonga.

Hosted by the Historic Houses Trust, this is a rare opportunity to see one of the country's best comedic talents weave witty tales of suburban youth, road trips with Vanilla Ice and new fatherhood in one of Australia's most celebrated lounge rooms.

Built by internationally renowned architect Harry Seidler from 1948–1950, Rose Seidler House has been beautifully restored in the style of the era and is now a popular house museum run by the Historic Houses Trust.

A fan of the house, Ross thought it would be the ideal setting for the show on return from promoting his first book Mum Had a Kingswood last year, having fallen in love with the art of engaging audiences in small and varied spaces.

"I revelled speaking in the difference places and also really started to enjoy a different style of performance that was very much story-telling driven," he says.

"I have been fascinated by modernist architecture since I was a kid and even live in a house from the era, I absolutely love Rose Seidler House.

"I'm looking forward to performing an extremely intimate show, hopefully people will feel as though they are in my lounge room."

The performance will also feature music written and performed live on the night with Ross' long-time friend and member of rock band Rocket Science, Kit Warhurst who is currently touring as band leader on the Spicks and Specks farewell tour.

"Kit and I have been playing music together for almost 20 years.

"Not only is this my first solo show, but it's the first time I've used music extensively," says Ross.

Man About the House*, Friday, February 3, 7pm & 9pm

Saturday, February 4, 7pm Rose Seidler House
71 Clissold Road, Wahroonga.

Bookings: T 02 8239 2211 or tickets.hht.net.au
General $50 | Concession $40

HISTORIC HOUSES TRUST

Media Inquiries:

Hannah Parkes T 02 8239 2318 E hannahp@hht.net.au