

I am going to watch a program called
A Convict Story on the classroom television

I will stay with my teacher and classmates in the classroom.

I will meet the presenter of the program and he/she will talk to us. We can talk to her as well.

The presenter will talk to us from a studio in Sydney.

The presenter will sometimes come up very close to the screen to show me exciting objects.

I will watch the presenter transform into a convict to take me on an imaginary journey back to when convicts lived in Sydney.

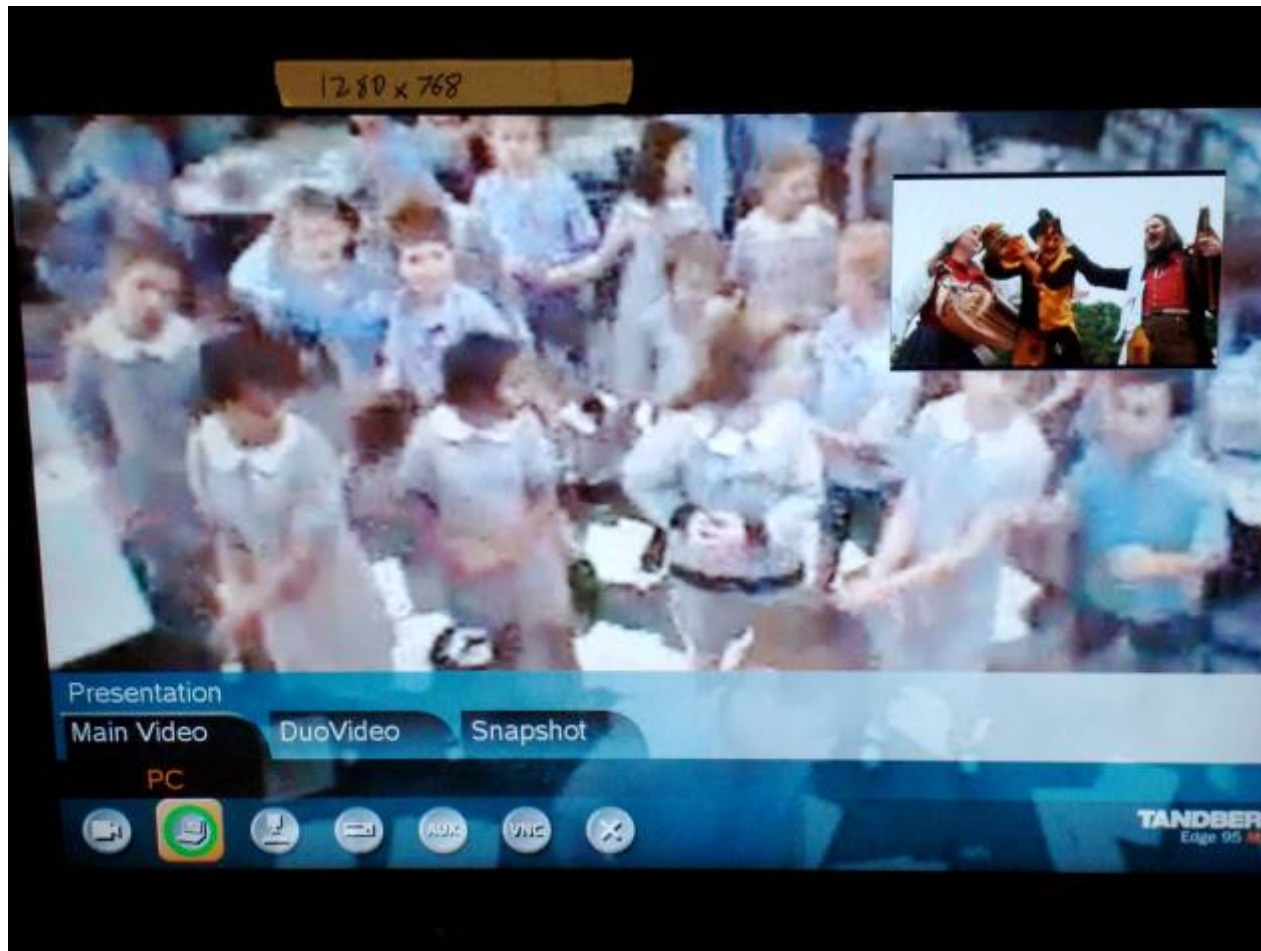

It can be fun to imagine you are someone else.

I will see interesting objects and artworks.

The convict may ask me questions and my teacher will choose when it is my turn to answer.

I will see some instruments of punishment from convict times.

I will join with the convict and my classmates to sing a convict ballad.

At the end the convict will turn into the presenter again and bring me back to the present to say goodbye.

I know I'm going to enjoy the experience of meeting the presenter and pretending to be a convict.
